The current crisis in the credit markets and the volatility of the stock market has caused increased pressure on working families. Join us for a one-day conference to consider the many economic issues confronting working people and their families in Missouri. Conference sessions will address the economic landscape in Missouri, programs and initiatives designed to address workers' needs, and a roundtable devoted to economic sectors including manufacturing, building and construction, utilities, and public employment. The keynote speaker is Mike English, President of the Missouri Council on Economic Education.
